Professional hoses for construction and industry. Construction hoses or industrial hoses are the right choice for pumping large quantities of water. The material made of twisted polyester yarn outside and rubber coating inside is resistant and at the same time flexible.

A construction hose is ideal for pumping large quantities of water with a submersible pump. Construction hoses are therefore preferably used when flooded areas need to be drained or for pumping out wells or ditches. Since the construction hose can also be used for irrigation, it is also referred to as fire hose.
